

I respectfully request that the FCC refrain from making any changes that would allow increased use of celualr phone devices aboard commercial aircraft. Before considering such a proposal I would trust that testing and engineering analysis has demonstrated that there is no possible way that the EMF signals from the celuslar phones can cause any detrimental impact on any aircraft electronic device. Even if there is no apparent safety issue, I am vehemently opposed to allowing the use of cellular phones in such a confined public space. The use of phones will lead to confrontations between passengers as many phone users have no concept of how their inane conversations are considered obnoxious by those around them.

I ask that you do not allow any further use of cellular phones aboard commercial flights.
